Primary Care Network announced

Group hoping for launch of local PCN in April

Courtney Whalen
Western Review

Last week it wasn't cold and flu that had the waiting room of Drayton Valley's Clara Family Practice full to bursting, it was the announcement of the evolution of health care in the area. Minister of Health Fred Horne was in town on Feb. 21 to officially announce Alberta's 42nd Primary Care Network will be located in Drayton Valley. The province will provide approximately $1.7 million for the establishment of the network, which will see area doctors and other health professionals work as a team to provide care for patients.

Each PCN in the province works off the same principles, but is tailored to meet local needs by the team of doctors and health professionals within it.

"In the end it's not going to be so much about the model, but how it's going to serve the community," said Horne after the announcement.

"The real value is when you put the whole team together."

Dr. Roban Botes was representing local doctors at the announcement. The journey to establish a PCN locally began back in 2012 when doctors got together to look at gaps in primary care in the area, he said. The fruits of those discussions eventually led to the creation of a business plan for a Primary Care Network that could start addressing them. Botes said these involved believe combining services will improve access to patients. At its inception the local PCN has identified specific areas it will focus on as part of its three-year plan. The PCN team, which will look to include doctors, a registered nurse, social worker, psychiatric nurse, dietitian, pharmacist and a midwife or obstetrical registered nurse, will be focusing on the areas of chronic disease management, mental health, family planning and obstetrical care. Botes sees one overarching benefit coming out of the new PCN for the community.

"I think better access to multi-disciplinary care," he said.

Horne said that PCNs are one of the ways the provincial government is looking to improve health care services in Alberta and other areas have seen success as patients respond well to the model.

"As this PCN gets up and running you will see that the doctors here have put in a lot of work in putting it together, but also looking at how they might look at providing health care differently," Horne said in his comments to those gathered for the announcement.

Drayton Valley/Devon MLA Diana McQueen said that bringing a Primary Care Network to the area has been one of her goals and Horne credited her for recognizing the value of the model and working to make it a reality for the community.

Alberta Health Services Central Zone Medical Director Dr. Evan Lundall said the new PCN will be the 11th in the central zone.

"I'm a firm believer in a strong primary care foundation," he said.

Mayor Glenn McLean said he is encouraged by the launch of the PCN. "I do believe the multi-disciplinary approach is the best one," he said.

The introduction of the care network is also a positive step in sustainability as access to health care is important for the continued growth of a community, he noted.

With the official announcement made, those involved in the PCN will move to the next step.

"How to make it work," said Botes.

In the coming months the Primary Care Network will hire staff and look for a central clinic location to work from. As those pieces are falling into place the PCN plans to start operating on Apr. 1.

Brazeau County council briefs

Western Review

DELEGATIONS

Council chambers were used as delegations that addressed council on a whole range of topics. Starting of the meeting PCs Co-ordinators Lyle Strand introduced herself to new council members and updated everyone on the work PCs does within the area. Todd Poland from 181 addressed council and did a presentation discussing investments as well as bonds and what are good options for municipalities to go with. Emily Hickman did a brief presentation describing some of the findings that were collected during the Homelessness and Poverty study. Members of the Breton Community Hall committee visited council chambers to give an update on the fundraising efforts of the group to bring a new facility to Breton and request that council make a decision on funding as it would benefit their efforts elsewhere having the commitment. Ryan Edwards from the Eagle Point Blue Rapids Parks Council did a presentation on how the organization could help improve the tourism efforts of the county. Paul Deslisle from Alberta Electric System Operators met with council in private.

AFFORDABLE HOUSING

A resolution was made to accept administration's recommendation on moving forward with an action plan to address affordable housing in Brazeau County. The county is currently involved with joint efforts with the Town of Drayton Valley to address issues of affordable housing, but because the town is at a different stage it is important for the county to look at the issues facing its residents and what needs to be done as a separate unit. Actuality as well as a joint partner they decided. The Housing Condition Index, developed through joint efforts of the county and Drayton Valley, is available for viewing on the main page at www.brazeau.ca.

CANADA DAY

Council received a letter from the Village of Breton requesting $2,500 to help with the expenses of its Canada celebrations. Rick Eames, director of community services, advised council that this is an amount that had been budgeted for and that a cheque and letter had already been sent out.

In 2013 $5,000 was given in order to help run the annual event, however, in the 2014 budget only $3,500 was set aside. A resolution was made to support the request from the Canada Day Organizing Committee of Drayton Valley to provide an additional $1,500 in funding from unrestricted surplus for the Canada Day Celebrations 2014.

BRETON SKATE PARK

A resolution was made to carry forward the budgeted $30,000 for the Village of Breton. Skateboard Park from the 2013 Budget to the 2014 Budget. The funds were available for the community to use but it was not required.

PHYSICIAN RECRUITMENT

A resolution was made to provide an additional $10,000 in the 2014 budget for the purposes of physician recruitment. Currently there are 10 physicians working within the area, four of who are travelling here from other areas including one from Devon, two from South Alberta for work periods ranging from six weeks to five months, and the remaining working for one or two weeks at a time from Whistler, BC. Highlighting the importance of supporting the efforts of recruiting physicians, Reeve Pat Vos stated that the area is in "an international competition" when it came to getting doctors.

MIRAL COMMUNICATION

A resolution was made that council adopt the Utility Communications Strategy Model as presented and that the 10-year capital budget be amended for the Rural Communications Strategy to reflect the amount required to complete Phase 1 - 3 from 2014 to 2018. Brad Mocal, responsible for Brazeau County's information systems and technology, explained how he had received confirmation that $900,000 in grant funding was available for aspects of the project covering areas where limited to no service is available.

A resolution was also made to enter into an agreement with Vitec Consulting Inc. for the 2014 fiscal year and to amend the budget accordingly. Vitec has currently been working with the county on an hourly basis as a consultant for the area's Rural Communications Strategy.

ROAD WORK

A resolution was made to include the new construction of Top Rd. 494 from Range Road 80 west, approximately 600 m, in the plans for winter in-house road construction for 2014/2015 at no extra cost to the in-house road construction budget.

WALKING PATH

A resolution was made to receive the report for information and proceed with placing the project, Walking Path - Poplar Ridge Store to the County Style Trailer Court, on the 10-year Capital Plan, and to address this walking trail during the Master Recreation Plan discussions in September 2014.

REDISTRICTING

Council approved a request from Harley and Edna Vign to extend their subdivision application to pursue the redistricting of lands NW 4-50-7-WSM from Agricultural to Rural land. The subdivision process had already received numerous extensions and administration recommended that council refuse the request for an additional extension. Council chose to approve the extension stating that they are partially responsible for the delay due to public consultations being held in regards to the subdivision of the land.

COMMERCIAL WASTE

A resolution was made that administration draw up a policy that commercial waste not be accepted at the transfer stations and bring the policy back to council for approval. Prior to their decision council asked administration if accepting commercial waste was possible at any of the transfer stations. Administration informed council that by adding commercial it would increase the costs and danger of operating transfer sites throughout the county.

ROTARY WEEK

A resolution was made to proclaim Feb. 24 to 28 as "Celebrate Rotary Week" in Brazeau County.

WEED CONTROL

A resolution was made to meet with the Minister of Transportation with the agenda item of weed control during the spring AAMDCG Convention. During taxpayer concerns Al Taylor expressed concern over what seemed like miscommunications between the province and the county when it came to weed control in areas where their jurisdictions crossed.

FEDERATION OF CANADIAN MUNICIPALITIES

A resolution was made that any council member who wishes to participate to the FCM Conference be allowed to attend for 2014 and subsequent years. During taxpayer concerns Al Taylor also raised concerns about council members attending conferences such as the recent FCM conference, which was held in PEI, questioning how beneficial it was for councilors to be attending them. Reeve Pat Vos highlighted some of the benefits she got from the conference, which was attended by three other council members on county dollars while Vos paid for herself. Division 23 Union, Rita who was one of the councilors that attended the conference will have a write up in the county's next newsletter sharing her experience. Previously only three councilors were permitted to attend FCM conferences.

MEETINGS

The next regular council meeting will be held Mar. 4, while Land Use Bylaw meetings will be held Mar. 10 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Mar. 12 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., and Mar. 25 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. A 10 Year Capital Plan Update and Review will also be held Apr. 30 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

DIVISIONAL MEETINGS

For its third year in a row, councilors and administration will be holding six divisional meetings throughout the county in order to have discussions with ratepayers about the 2014 budget. The sessions will include presentation from various departments and explanations of their budgets, and an opportunity for residents to voice concerns and ask questions. Local pharmacists not encouraged by new agreement

Will have to see if new agreement will have impact

Lesley Allan
Western Review

Last week the Alberta government announced a new four year agreement they say will help ensure Albertans have access to additional services, but local pharmacists don't see much of a change and don't know what it will actually mean in the long run.

"I don't think the services themselves have changed at all," says Jennifer Winter, owner of Winter's Pharmacy. "They've made a few changes in the stipulations as to who we can provide the services for, made it easier to give more people medication reviews and we're able to bill (the government) for a wider range, but the services themselves haven't changed, it's already what we've been doing for the last year and a bit."

The agreement, made between the province, the Alberta Pharmacists' Association, and Alberta Blue Cross, includes four years of predictable funding for pharmacies, transparency of prescription pricing, changes to dispensing fees, and an update to service framework that will compensate for what the government sees as an increase in primary health care being provided by pharmacists.

By ensuring pharmacies are fully supported in their expanded role, we are fulfilling our commitment to provide Albertans with greater access to health care services in their communities," said Minister of Health, Fred Horne in a release about the agreement set to come into effect on Apr. 1. "This new partnership agreement will no doubt result in improved patient care throughout our province as pharmacists take on a greater role in our health care system."

Some of the services said to be more readily available with the agreement include customized medication assessments, tobacco cessation counselling and new medication management tools for diabetes.

According to local pharmacists, programs such as these have already been an important aspect of the customer service offered to communities and although the changes will help to recoup some of the costs associated with the services it will not make up for past cuts especially in small communities where populations limit the number of people accessing the services.

"With the services we're doing now it's a great thing that we're able to do them, but not everybody wants them," says Corwin Felstad, co-owner of the Drayton Valley Value Drug Mart. "There's only a population of 1,000 people here. I really like the fact that we can see in a day and there's only so many med reviews and so many vaccines and so many injections that we can do to compensate us back for that money."

"We're not in Edmonton where you have a million people to draw from," he continues. "That's the unfortunate part, there's always a ceiling effect of how many people we can actually bill for with those services and some people don't want them."

Despite the government's positive ideals of supporting pharmacies and making them important aspects of communities, those who work within them do not feel as though that support is there and say they have lost so much it's hard to tell if any of these planned changes will end up being a benefit.

"It's hard for people to understand how and what they've taken from us, but we're really plugging away and trying to provide better customer service for people and now we can bill for a lot of that," shares Winter. "I really like the fact we're working our tail off to provide really good customer service and help people with their health, but it doesn't nearly make up for what we've lost."

"My problem is that they're taking $20 out of our front pocket and putting $2 in the back," says Felstad.

"That's the part that worries me, they're taking a lot more money than we can actually physically get back from doing these professional services."

"Until we have six months to a year's worth of the actual agreement we won't really know the impact," he continues. "We seem to be getting cut every six months to a year so we're definitely on their radar."

Although being on the radar for a government that is trying to cut costs can be a highly negative thing, Winter also believes that there are some positives to be seen as they continue to forge ahead.

Describing it as a complex agreement with lots of grey areas, Felstad and Winter have great concerns about what the future may look like for pharmacies.

"We're basically scrounging for what we can get, we're never going to get back to where we were even a year and a half ago. Pharmacy has changed forever," shares Felstad. "I can't predict what happens 10 years from now, but it's definitely a low point in pharmacy with lots of uncertainty."

"I'm having a hard time deciding if it's going to be beneficial to me at this point, I actually think it will probably not change much," adds Winter. "In some respects we're going to lose a lot and in other respects we might gain a little bit. So I just don't know what it means."

- You do not currently pay your taxes through a mortgage company (PIT)

CELEBRATING ALBERTA'S BLACK HISTORY

Courtney Whalen Western Review

The Village of Breton plays a significant role in Alberta's black history as one of the main areas where black settlers came to build a life in the province, at the time called Keystone. For 20 years the Breton and District Historical Society has been taking part in Black History Month celebrations to recognize the community's unique history. On Feb. 22 local residents came to the Breton Faith Covenant Church to see a presentation of Ely's Gift, an original piece by Pat Darbasie (AT LEFT). The presentation also featured music by Deborah Dobbin and Stephanie Buttle (AT RIGHT). Darbasie said she wrote the piece, which chronicles the journey of Ely as she comes to Canada with her family as a child and eventually builds a life with her husband and children while also dealing with her gift of sight, missing face and fiction by drawing some of the central story elements from the writings of Owen Cooke, one of the area's black settlers.

MAN SENTENCED TO TIME SERVED

A man who admitted he committed a number of thefts in order to support a drug habit was given a sentence reflective of time spent in pre-sentence custody last week.

Jeffery Butler had originally entered six guilty pleas to charges including possession of stolen property on Feb. 4. However, Judge Marilyn White delayed sentencing him to allow more time for restitution requests to be filed by victims of the thefts. Last week two requests, adding to a total of approximately $50,000 were presented to the court.

Among the charges Butler pleaded guilty to were those stemming from incidents last December. On Dec. 4 Drayton Valley RCMP received a complaint that a passenger window of a vehicle had been smashed and a number of items were taken including a laptop, shoes and sunglasses. On Dec. 9 during a traffic stop police noticed a man wearing shoes that resembled the description of those reported stolen. The man told police he had gutted the footcure from Butler. When Butler was later located he admitted to the theft.

Then, on Dec. 18, a passerby had observed a man breaking into a vehicle. A number of items were stolen from the vehicle including a credit card. A man later identified as Butler then used the stolen credit card to buy cigarettes at a local store. A few days later, on Dec. 22, another vehicle was broken into and several items including snowboarding equipment, ski pants, and sunglasses were taken.

White sentenced Butler to 57 days in jail, giving him credit for 57 days spent in pre-sentence custody, put him on two years probation and ordered him to pay restitution to those who had submitted requests.

NOT REPORTING EARNS MAN CUSTODY

A man who didn't bother to report to probation after being released from custody in 2012 pleaded guilty to breaching that requirement in Drayton Valley Provincial Court last week.

Back in January, 2012 Rodrick Montreux was sentenced to a period of jail and two years of probation. One of the conditions of that sentence was that he was to report, or to probation once he was released from custody. He never did that.

Prior to pleading guilty last week Montreux had spent 20 days in custody and Judge Marilyn White sentenced him to 20 days in jail with credit for that time.

JAIL TIME FOR HELPING WITH STOLEN COPPER

A man pleaded guilty to theft under $5,000 last week in Drayton Valley Provincial Court. On July 9, 2013 Drayton Valley RCMP were called to a local company for the report of a bank and enter where the investigation revealed a significant amount of damage and large value of copper wire had been stolen. As a result, a camera was installed at the site. When police returned to check the camera on July 10 they caught two men with a quantity of copper wire in the car. One of those men was Steven Stevenson.

Stevenson was located and arrested by police and admitted that he had been helping load the wire.

Last week the court heard that Stevenson had been paid to help load a quantity of wire.

He had spent approximately two months in jail prior to sentencing and last week Judge Marilyn White sentenced him to 14 days jail on the charge, with credit for time already spent in custody.

MAN WHO DROVE INTO HOME FENCED

A driver who plowed through a local resident's fence and into the side of their house pleaded guilty to dangerous operation of motor vehicle last week.

Last week the court heard that around 1 a.m. on Sept. 28, 2013 after having been downtown Drayton Valley drinking, Donald Berry was driving at a high rate of speed on 55 Ave. in Drayton Valley, lost control, left the road and struck a home. At the time he fled the scene, but later turned himself into police.

As reported in the Western Review after the incident, the vehicle driven by Berry left the road, took out a number of mature trees, destroyed the deck and shattered the window of a basement bedroom where the homeowners' young son was sleeping. No one was hurt in the incident, but it prompted resident Sherry Gauthier to come forward and speak out about increasing traffic concerns on the local road lined with single-family homes.

Last week Judge Marilyn White issued Berry a $2,000 fine.

FINE FOR CARE AND CONTROL

Last week a man was fined after pleading guilty to having care and control of a vehicle.

Nathan Byrd pleaded guilty in relation to an incident on Nov. 13, 2013. Around 12:45 a.m. Drayton Valley RCMP received a report that a man was parked in a vehicle near the complainant's trailer and that earlier the man had been driving around and pulling doughnuts in a nearby parking lot.

When police arrived they found Byrd in the vehicle. The keys were in the ignition, but the vehicle wasn't running. The officer noticed a smell of alcohol and that Byrd was slurring his speech and didn't seem to know where he was or what was going on. He was subsequently charged for having care and control of a vehicle.

Last week he was fined $1,400 and given a one-year driving prohibition.

COLLISION LEADS TO FINE

A man who struck a pole with his vehicle last month pleaded guilty to driving with more than the legal limit of alcohol in his system in Drayton Valley Provincial Court last week.

On Jan. 17 around 8:25 p.m. emergency services responded to 50 St. and 50 Ave. for a collision where a driver had struck a pole. Witnesses at the scene identified Kyle Parkhurst as the driver. When police approached the 20-year-old driver, they noted he was showing signs of impairment. He was arrested, taken to the hospital to be examined and was subsequently released. He was then taken to the Drayton Valley RCMP detachment and given a breathalyzer test. The reading from the test was 0.18. The legal limit is 0.08.

Last week he was issued a $1,200 fine and a one-year driving prohibition.

Ready to (musical) ride

RCMP show will be back in Drayton Valley this summer

Courtney Whalen
Western Review

July will bring a sea of red thundering down the rodeo grounds on horseback as the RCMP Musical Ride moves into town this summer.

It's been eight years since the Lions Rodeo Grounds last hosted the precision riding troupe, but on July 16 they'll be back as the main attraction in a fundraiser for the Drayton Valley Health Services Foundation. Proceeds from the event will go to support the foundation's latest campaign.

Drayton Valley Health Services Foundation Executive Director Catherine Sekura said she applied to be a stop on the ride's tour approximately a year ago. Back in December the foundation knew they were being considered and just a few weeks ago they received confirmation that the Musical Ride will be here on July 16.

More details will be confirmed after a Mar. 15 meeting with representative from the ride, but Sekura wants to start putting together an organizing committee now.

The Health Services Foundation fundraiser will be the Musical Ride's first stop after its stint at this year's Calgary Stampede and 36 horses (and their riders) will be putting on the show. As part of hosting duties, Sekura said they will be responsible for housing and feeding the horses while they're visiting.

"We'll be looking for volunteers to help us with that process," she said last week.

Organizers will be hoping Mother Nature favours the July 16 date, but if the weather doesn't co-operate an alternate plan will be in place.

More information will be forthcoming as plans fall into place, but it's not too early to plan on attending, notes Sekura.

"We want people to save that date and put it on their calendar and make sure they come down," she said.

Anyone interested in becoming part of the organization committee, curious about other volunteer opportunities, or who wishes to donate items such as horse feed can contact Sekura at 780-621-4911.

This year the Drayton Valley/Brazeau County Fire Services handed out a number of awards at the annual Emergency Services Hall. Among them was the Sheldon S. Fuson Medal of Merit. This year the fire services handed out two of the awards, named after former Fire Chief Sheldon Fuson to recognize an officer in the fire services who shows leadership skills in and outside of the fire hall. District Fire Chief Darcy McGregor received a standing ovation when he was announced as this year's recipient. This was also the first time the medal was awarded to someone outside the fire services. Fire Chief Tim Thomson announced that former Drayton Valley Staff Sergeant Brian Jones would also receive the medal in recognition of the work he did while in the community. Watch next week's edition for additional award recipients.

ALL QUIET ON THE CALL FRONT

It was a quiet week for calls for the Drayton Valley/Brazeau County Fire Services between Feb. 12-19.

On Feb. 13 crews responded to a camper on fire around 2:30 p.m. In the time they arrived on scene the camper was completely engulfed. A lot of work the fire was still under investigation.

The only other call came in as an alarm at a commercial building. That call turned out to be false alarm.

SECONDARY DONE RIGHT
With the continued housing crunch in the area the Drayton Valley/Brazeau County Fire Services are coming across more and more instances of people living in locations that aren't safe.

"We have some serious safety issues in our community, which is a concern," said Fire Chief Tim Thomson. "We have people living in different locations which are extremely dangerous."

Suites that don't comply with Alberta building standards can put the lives of those living there at risk in the case of a fire.

"We have run into several in the last little while that do not meet the code," said Thomson.

In order to be considered legal secondary suites there are a number of items that have to be in place.

Firstly, Thomson said according to Alberta building standards a secondary suite is a self-contained unit within a single-family home that has its own kitchen, bathroom and entrance, separate from that used to gain entry to the main house. Ceilings in the suite must be a minimum of 1.95 metres and the suite must have a direct exit to the outside. Inside stairs leading to an exit must use fire-rated material for the walls.

Secondary suites are allowed in some areas of Drayton Valley, but must have a permit before they're constructed.

To find out more about the requirements for secondary suites in Drayton Valley contact the Planning and Development department at 780-514-2266.

GET READY FOR FIRE SEASON
The beginning of March brings with it the start of fire season in Alberta.

Starting Mar. 1 Albertans in the fire-coded areas require a fire permit for any burning, excluding campfires. For information on permits in Drayton Valley call 780-514-6616.

Permits through the Drayton Valley/Brazeau County Fire Services are required all year round for burning in areas other than those managed by Environment and Sustainable Resource Development.

One item many people might not think of is the need for interconnected smoke detectors as opposed to stand alone detectors in the main house and secondary suite.

"That's a big problem," said Thomson. "Because if it goes off downstairs, the people upstairs need to know."

Any gas-powered appliances such as furnaces and water heaters must be in a separate room with fire-rated material used for the walls and ceiling.

Finally, Thomson said any new secondary suites are required to have independent (RMC) systems.

Secondary suites are allowed in some areas of Drayton Valley, but must have a permit before they're constructed.

To find out more about the requirements for secondary suites in Drayton Valley contact the Planning and Development department at 780-514-2266.

PUBLIC OPEN HOUSE

New zoning is being proposed to the "Aspenview Area Structure Plan" in the Town of Drayton Valley and the plan's proponent is holding an open house to introduce the intended re-zoning. Drayton Valley council briefs

Courtney Whalen
Western ReviewSLEEPER UNITS GIVEN
OK FOR ANOTHER YEAR

Council has given approval for the continued use of six sleeper trailer units located on two lots in a local industrial park.

Under changes made to the Land Use Bylaw last January, a council recommendation is a discretionary use on a one-year temporary basis. Applicants are required to re-apply yearly if they wish to continue to have a recommendation in conjunction with their work sites. A $500 per bed fee is also levied to help offset the cost of the additional use of municipal services.

The six sleeper trailers are located at 5025 and 5017-62 St.

The applicant applied for another year and also requested the $500 per bed fee be reduced to $350 per bed as the sleeper trailers are only in use seasonally.

Last week council decided to grant the renewal application, but turned down the request for the reduced fee.

Mayor Glenn McLean refused himself from the discussion due to pecuniary interest.

COUNCIL TURNS DOWN
APPLICATION FOR
BOARDING FACILITY

An applicant hoping to develop living quarters for 11 people on the second floor of a building in Apex Community was turned down by council last week.

The applicant was seeking to develop a boarding facility with 11 bedrooms and communal kitchen and washroom facilities. That type of development is neither a permitted or discretionary use in the commercial district in the town's Land Use Bylaw.

Objections to the proposed development were made by an adjacent land owner opposed to residential use in the commercial area. Concerns were also raised by the Drayton Valley/Braceau County Fire Services and building inspector. Administration recommended council refuse the development permit and avoid setting a precedent for similar developments in the future.

Council was in agreement with the recommendation. Coun. Debra Bisset noted that while housing in the area is a major issue that needs creative solutions, she didn't support this particular proposal.

"I do not believe this is appropriate for that kind of area," she said.

"I certainly commend them for their creativity, but don't feel that this belongs in this area," agreed Coun. Nicole Nadon.

Mayor Glenn McLean refused himself from the discussion due to a pecuniary interest.

FIRST READING WILL TRIGGER OPEN HOUSE

Developers of Meraw Estates have applied for zoning of a portion of the development from R1A (low density residential) to R1B (stand and residential district).

It approved the rezoning would allow the developer to create single family lots with widths between 10 and 14 meters and depths of 17.5 meters, a reduction from the current zoning that allows lots of 10 to 16 meters wide and 35 metres deep.

A similar application was filed in 2012 and was turned down by council in light of opposition from adjacent and nearby landowners.

Last week Planning and Development Officer Chandra Dwyer said council there is nothing to prevent the developer from re-applying for the rezoning.

Last week councilors gave the rezoning application first reading, which will now require the developers to host an open house and get feedback. Following that a public hearing will be scheduled. Landowners within a 300 metre radius will be notified of the application.

Councilors agreed that giving first reading will allow impacted residents to provide feedback on the proposal.

"I'm in favour of this going to first reading so the public can have their say," said Coun. Dean Shuler. "I'd like to have the public planning committee come forward with this and tell us why they are opposed or not."

Mayor Glenn McLean refused himself from the discussion due to a pecuniary interest.

discussion due to a pecuniary interest.

COUNCIL SUPPORTS
HOUSING RESOLUTION

Last week councilors approved a resolution in support of a campaign to lobby federal support for housing initiatives.

The campaign, being supported by the Federation of Canadian Municipalities, is encouraging the federal government to look at long-term housing solutions and work with all levels of government on ongoing housing issues across the country, in part through the dedication of financial support.

Council also adopted a National Dementia Strategy resolution in support of the Alzheimer's Society of Canada, which is lobbying for the creation of a National Dementia Strategy.

COMMUNITY MEMBERS APPOINTED TO
ADVISORY BOARD

Last week council approved the appointment of nine members to the Mayor's Advisory Committee. The committee, which includes four representatives from the Town of Drayton Valley, two from Brazeau County, one from the Ministerial Association, one youth representative and one senior representative, advised for interested individuals last November and December.

Councilors heard that 17 individuals applied.

Appointed to the Mayor's Advisory Committee for three years last week were: Heather Fradette, Anne Murphy, Wendy Snow, Heather Anderson and Brian Graft. Appointed for two-year terms were: Randy Beyer, Jay Harris, Duane Thompson and Bernie Schell.

RECOGNIZING ROTARY
WEEK IN DRAYTON VALLEY

Last week Mayor Glenn McLean proclaimed Feb. 24-28 as Celebrate Rotary Week in Drayton Valley in recognition of the local Rotary Club and its contributions to the community.

The service club is hosting a number of events throughout the week, including an open house on Feb. 27 from 4 p.m. to the MacKenzie Community Centre. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Western ReviewMAN CHARGED AFTER SPEEDING THROUGH COLLISION SCENE

Drayton Valley RCMP officers were forced to take evasive action for their own safety after a driver sped through a collision scene on Feb. 15.

Officers were at the scene of a single vehicle collision in the area of Hwy. 759 and Twp. Road 515 around 9 p.m. that night when a vehicle approached.

"It sped through the scene causing the two members on the scene to take evasive action for themselves and a civilian," said Drayton Valley RCMP Cpl. Marcia McDermott.

One of the members on the scene was able to get to his vehicle, follow the suspect vehicle and subsequently pull it over.

The man who was driving was arrested and taken into custody. He is facing charges related to impaired driving as well as dangerous operation of a motor vehicle.

RCMP
APPRECIATIVE OF CALLS

Citizen reports of a suspicious vehicle in the Dodson Plaza parking lot prompted police to investigate last week. Police attended and found the driver sleeping in the driver's seat.

At the time the driver was arrested on suspicion of being impaired by drugs, however no charges have been laid in the incident.

Despite that Cpl. Marcia McDermott said the call from concerned citizens allowed police to deal with the situation.

"We still want people to call us," she said.

And people are. Over the Feb. 14-16 weekend McDermott said Drayton Valley RCMP received five complaints of possible impaired drivers. Two of those complaints resulted in charges.

TEXT TRICKERY

Drayton Valley RCMP are reminding residents that attempted fraud and scams can happen in many forms and are expanding beyond the familiar phone call and e-mail attempts.

Fraudsters can also attempt to part people from their money and personal information via text messages. If you receive a text from someone, or someone you don't recognize do not provide any personal information.

Season ends as Wildcats can't tame Wild

Wildcats don't move past second round of playoffs

Courtney Whalen
Western Review

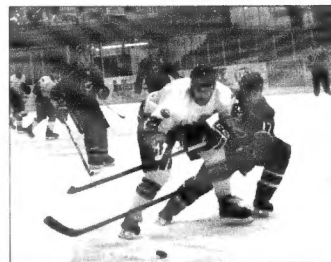

Last Friday night the Drayton Valley Wildcats weren't going down in the second round without a fight as they faced the Whitecourt Wild at the Drayton Valley Omniplex.

It was an aggressive game as the Wildcats were fighting to keep their post-season alive in the best-of-five series. The two teams traded penalties and a few blows during the game, but it was the Wild who were able to make the most of their offence.

Strength between the posts kept the game close as Wildcats netminder Derek Schadeck faced an onslaught of shots from the Wild, allowing only two goals in. The Wild got their third and final goal in the closing minutes of the game on the empty net.

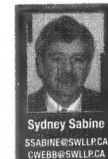

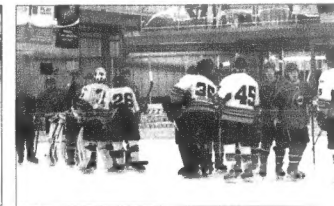

The Wildcats were unable to get one in the net and the buzzer went on their 2013/14 North Central Hockey League (NCHL) season as the Wild won the game 3-0, clinching the series. The Cats ended their 18-game regular season at the top of the NCHL South Division and eliminated the Ahabasca Aces in the first round of playoffs before facing the Wild.

The Wild will go on to face the winner of the Devon Barons and Westlock Warriors series for the NCHL league championship.

The Drayton Valley Wildcats took on the Whitecourt Wild at the Omniplex on Feb. 21 for game three in the second round of North Central Hockey League playoff action. The Wildcats were in a must-win situation to stay alive in the post-season, but were unable to muster the offence to extend the series. CLOCKWISE FROM TOP LEFT: Adam Verrette attempts to move the puck past a Wild player. Myles Perry takes shot on the Wild net. Netminder Derek Schadeck was kept busy on the night and kept the game close for the Wildcats. The Wildcats and Wild shake hands at the conclusion of the game.

MIXED RESULTS FOR THUNDER

Courtney Whalen Western Review

Last week got off to a nail biting start for the Drayton Valley Thunder when they took on the Greenwood Park Outlanders at the Omniplex on Friday night. The Thunder prevailed in the game after it went to a 19-player shootout. Wednesday night the Oil Barons were in town for a game rescheduled from January (pictured). The Oil Barons took the win 2-1. The Thunder ended their week in Whitstout taking on the Wolverines. Whitstout proved to have the offence on their side coming away with a 5-2 victory over the Thunder. The Thunder now enter the final week of regular season action with games on the road Tuesday and Wednesday before returning to the Omniplex Friday night for Fan Appreciation Night. That game against the Wolverines gets underway at 7:30 p.m.

Minor ball sees decline in players

Low interest means no midget team for last three or four years

Lesley Allan
Western Review

It had to do with the snow on the ground, but volunteers with Drayton Valley Minor Baseball (DVMB) are hoping young athletes will want to join the diamond this spring as early registration continues until Mar. 1.

Over the years organizers say there has been a decrease in athletes putting on the cleats, especially in the midget division, which hasn't seen a local team in roughly three or four years. "It's hard to say why it's dropping," shares Fran Llin Boudreau, a coach with Drayton Valley minor baseball. "I know even in bantam it's hard to get 12 players and that's kids 12 to 14/15."

"There's just a decline in baseball in Drayton Valley and it's really diminished a lot," he continues.

"It's coming along now the mosquitoes sound like they've got probably 13 players, so it's coming up through, it's just been so weak the last three or four years because no one's been playing and that's the big issue."

According to Boudreau

it only take one year of low interest to affect future years on minor ball as players who want to play look to other areas when not enough bodies register to fill local teams. "It makes it hard because the kids they want to play ball but they've got to go to Leduc, Spruce Grove, or Stony Plain," he says. "Then once they get in there they don't want to come back, and why would they when they're playing in a bigger city with a different calibre of baseball."

"This year we had six kids that moved up from bantam and they're playing, but those are the only kids we have because we didn't have a team last year so you don't have the kids coming back," continues

Boudreau, adding a silver lining for the future. "Next year we'll have a midget team because we have 10 kids that move up and the majority of them have been playing ball for three years now."

To make up a team organizers are required to have a minimum of 12 players on the bench. Currently the midget team has eight players registered so there is high hope that more youth will come forward before the Apr. 1 cut-off date.

For 2014 DVMB will only be accepting online registration from its web site at www.dvmball.net. For more information contact the registrar at draytonvalleyminorsball@gmail.com

Students compete in new style of tournament for Arashi-Do club

Western Review Staff

On Feb. 15, two members of Arashi-Do Drayton Valley travelled to Sylvan Lake to compete in the Submission Ace Cup.

A submission only round robin tournament, the format of the competition is different than the majority of tournaments Arashi-Do students attend, however the students stepped up and competed their best.

First up was Kaylib Carl who competed in the 11 to 12-year-old division and had four fights in his five-person round robin. Starting off shaky with a loss in his first match, Carl came back strong and won his next three fights by submission, by an Americana, and two straight arm bars.

"He showed tremendous grit and mental fortitude to continue after this first loss," shared Arashi-Do head coach Sensei Ken Sumner. "Kaylib was enthusiastic with his round Robin wins, but he also showed great sportsmanship after one of his fellow competitors was injured, he took it upon himself to console that competitor. This show of sportsmanship is exactly what the martial arts is about."

Next up was Iana Kennedy, a perennial competitor who commonly competes in tournaments around Alberta and often ends up fighting the same group people. This, however, was not the case during the Ace

Local martial arts fighter Kaylib Carl (far left) received a medal for his efforts during the Submission Ace Cup in Sylvan Lake on Feb. 15.

Cup where he took part in the 13 to 17-year-old division, fighting people years older than he is.

Being one of the lightest people in the division, Kennedy was up for a rough and tough day, finishing bouts but gaining new experiences and an appreciation for the older competitors. Losing three out of four, Kennedy won his third match by knockout.

"It was nice to see him come out and show some of the stuff we have been working on in class," said Sumner.

Continuing with his busy fighting schedule Kennedy has another challenge coming up next month on Mar. 15 when he takes up against a competitor from Edmonton in kickboxing.

Indoor season winding down for Youngmen

Will wrap up season by facing top teams in the division

Courtney Whalen
Athletic Advisor

The Youngmen will finish the final three games of their indoor season with a win against that is, this season's. The Youngmen have taken the lead out of the division, but it's not as possible to remain in the top half of the standings. With their opponents looking for points to avoid possible relegation the Youngmen knew they would be facing a team running for a win. Coming off a weekend of hard work with an injury prevention clinic followed by a full practice the following day, the Youngmen were ready to take on Red Hill. Our plan was to keep the game at a slower pace, said team spokesman Brad Kelly. "Red Hill are aggressive and quick and we could get caught making mistakes under pressure."

For the most part the Youngmen were able to avoid that trap and execute the game plan. There were some weak spots with passes or a few interceptions, but the keeper held strong and the defence was aggressive in getting the ball back. Cole Bush added his team's cause by netting two goals.

With fatigue starting to show on the part of Red Hill the Youngmen kicked it up a notch to take a 3-1 lead at the half. "While we felt in control, the start of the second half is our nemesis this year," said Kelly. A few mistakes by the Youngmen keeper sent the ball straight to Red Hill who were able to score twice more. However, the Youngmen kept their focus and kept their lead to clinch the game 5-3. Red Hill marked the last team the Youngmen will face this season who are playing to avoid relegation. The last three weeks of the season the Youngmen will try and be a thorn in the side of the division's top three teams as they each try to get as many points as possible to earn promotion.

CELESTIAL TOUR GUIDE

High River Times

The universe of space and our universe is a concept difficult to grasp for many who live upon planet Earth, but James Durban, president of the Big Sky Astronomical Society, is proud to continue his lifelong passion as a celestial tour guide for southern Alberta residents.

Durban, who lives in High River, always had an interest in astronomy and the night sky. It was his love of sharing his knowledge about the sky that led him to create the society some 16 years ago.

"Deep down, I think everyone has an interest in astronomy," he said. "You look up at the sky and see all those stars in the night sky and you just want to start thinking about how big the universe is."

The society operates its own observatory southeast of High River. Getting away from the glow of urban light pollution is important for viewing the cosmos, he explained. Durban said its location allows for a clear view of the sky.

"When there's no clouds in the sky and (gases) aren't, they're treated to a nice view of the sky," he said. "That's the whole idea behind it, to have a fine observatory in a dark place."

Though the group didn't hold their monthly meetings until five months after the flood, the Big Sky Astronomical Society is back boasting their sessions at the library's temporary spring structure. The group meets at the library on the second Friday of every month and their schedule can be found on their website. Just as there are new members, others have been with the group since its inception. Many helped set up the observatory, he explained.

In the flood-restoration period, Durban said like many High Riverites, many of the members were hard hit by the disaster and they are continuing to rebuild. Time off for star gazing is needed, he said.

"It's important to take a little time once a month to do something like this to just keep it going and to offer it to folks in High River, those who are interested in coming," he said.

As human beings, he said we're natural explorers and that we want to know what's on the other side of the mountain or what's on the far side of the galaxy.

"It seems to be human nature to want to explore things and the universe is no different," he said. "Unfortunately, we have to observe it for the most part with our feet firmly planted on Earth."

Growing up, Durban recalled the day his passion for the sky started. In Grade 3, his class went on a trip to Toronto's now closed planetarium. He became even more interested when Halley's Comet streaked by Earth when he was in high school.

On top of the Big Sky Astronomical Society, Durban operates his own planetarium, which he brings into schools across the region to teach young people about the sky.

"Yes we live on a relatively small planet and we orbit around a star of average size in a galaxy which is kind of large for our neighbourhood of galaxies, but it's kind of amazing to be able to contemplate all that," he noted.

CALKINS APPEARS WITH PRO-GUN SPEECH

From my cold dead hands," Calkins said during a speech at the Alberta Firearms Association's annual conference in Calgary.

It is a quote often associated with actor and famed gun lobbyist, the late Charlton Heston, but two Westwood MP House of Commons members were speaking in the House of Commons.

Calkins spoke in opposition to a resolution to be discussed at the Liberal Party's convention later this month, which would look to the Australian firearms buyback program as a way to strengthen gun control.

Calkins, a gun owner and rural Alberta MP, told parliament that, "Shockingly we have now learned that the Liberal Party has a plan to eradicate rifles and shotguns from law-abiding Canadian firearms owners."

At their next convention, the Liberal Party will be discussing the best way to, quote, reduce the number of firearms in Canada.

He wrapped up his statement by saying, "If the Liberal leader wants my guns, Mr. Speaker, he can get them from my cold dead hands."

The resolution Calkins is referring to is one that was proposed by the Young Liberals of Canada.

This is the Justin Trudeau wing of the Liberal Party and it is a group of young people that is counting for the last time. These are the people who got him the leadership of the Liberal Party and he is beholden to them," Calkins told Sun Media this past week.

The Australian model is far beyond, far beyond what the Allen Rock gun registry did in the '90s. So did the Australian model have a registry system, it also includes pellet guns and paintball guns in so far as needing a licence to buy and own and you have to register those. It imposes very strict classifications of firearms that make it virtually impossible for a duck hunter to have a pump-action shotgun.

The Liberal resolution references the Australian model by stating, "Whereas the Australian Conservative government of John Howard successfully reduced the number of firearms in that country through proactive initiatives such as buy backs, which led to decreases in the rates of firearm related crimes, homicides and suicides, "It is resolved that the primary objective of a Liberal government firearms policy shall be reducing the number of firearms in Canada through initiatives inspired by the Australian model."

Calkins said the Australian model led to massive gun confiscation, using tax dollars to buy the weapons people couldn't justly own or possess.

Calkins said the Conservative government's focus on gun control continues to utilize efforts such as background checks, when it comes to issuing firearms licenses. Also he said they are strengthening provisions in the Criminal Code in relation to those who use a firearm in commission of an offence.

"These are the people who are the actual criminals who use a firearm, whether it's through robbery, whether it's through sexual assault, whether it's through attempted murder. Whether it's murder. These are the people you go after, they are the ones breaking the law, that's where the resources should be spent."

Calkins, a gun owner, who has firearms for hunting and vermin control, wanted to raise the issue and thus used the line made famous by former NRA spokesman Charlton Heston.

"I needed to make a statement that clearly showed that the Liberal Party, if they can say whatever they want in front of the microphone, when you take a look and dig into what they are doing, bubbling right under the surface of the Liberal Party of Canada is their intent to renege a massive long-gun registry, firearms registry and to take firearms off the streets and take them away, primarily from law-abiding citizens," he said.

"I have had a lot of people contact me and say thank you and say, 'I appreciate you standing up for my rights,' and of course I have had some people who don't appreciate that language, but I've sparked that debate and had it not said that language (that would be going unchallenged and unchallenged right now)." SPRINGING THE KIDNAPERS

Edmonton Journal A local group is hoping to make kindness go viral.

"We were hoping for a wave of kindness," said Scarlett Byrman, one of three founding members of RAK YEG, a group hoping to spread acts of goodwill throughout Edmonton. "We were hoping to inspire other people to get out there and do kind things."

Random Acts of Kindness Edmonton, known as RAK YEG, started in September as a forum for people to share simple ideas to make the city a better place, posting weekly missions such as dropping off non-perishable food items to local charitable organizations or smiling at everyone you see.

"You never know what kind of day that person is having or what kind of situation they're in, and a simple hello or good morning can change everything for that person," said co-founder Steven Townsend. "It's just about spreading that around the city."

In recognition of Random Acts of Kindness Week, celebrated internationally from Feb. 10 to Feb. 16, the founding members of RAK YEG gathered to practice what they preach, stuffing 25 backpacks for the homeless filled with personal care items.

"It's independence, they don't have to ask anybody for anything," said Byrman, who decided to host the backpack stuffing event in lieu of a birthday celebration.

The group posted photos of volunteers delivering these goods, part of their social media platform that encourages inspiration, the sharing of ideas and even about acts to people who have demonstrated a kindness.

"We're trying to get more people involved," said Kevin Wong, the third co-founder of RAK YEG. "It's getting people involved in the spirit of giving and caring."

Last week's mission was to drop off non-perishable food items at the Old Strathcona Youth Centre — a drop-in centre where high-risk youth can escape the streets into a safe and supportive environment that has been hit hard by funding cuts.

Less than a year old, RAK YEG is still working to build a community while encouraging all Edmontonians to incorporate kindness into their everyday lives.

There is no school on Friday as it is a divisional PD day.

The next PNC meeting is scheduled for Mar. 11 at 7 p.m. in the library. All parents are welcome to come and get involved.

Thank you to the PNC for funding our agenda books once again this year. Did you know you can donate your Sobeys points to Aurora School? Just mention it to the cashier when you check out.

Also the PNC is still collecting Canadian Tree money as a fundraiser. The collection box is on the counter in the office.

We are still taking bids on our bridges and freezer. All applications are in excellent working order. We will conclude this auction on Feb. 28. Please stop in the office to place your bid.
